29 Oak barrel water butts

Some may not feel they need a personal store of water after this summer's downpours, but it pays to be prepared according to Sheherazade. "Made from ex-distillery oak barrels that have been used for the maturing of spirits, these beautiful old barrels look great anywhere. You don't even need to have a big garden to have one and, once filled, they supply plenty of water when needed," she advises.

32 White Lotus chandelier

"Kanzi Home lighting is really great - all of their designs are fun and kind of floral," says Collin. He recommends the White Lotus Chandelier, which is made from capiz shell hand-gathered in the Philippines. "All of the shells come from sustainable managed sources, and they're really lovely," he adds. The White Lotus design is also available as a floor lamp or, for a more gothic feel, the company also sells a range of black lotus chandeliers.

30 Biome Lifestyle blankets and throws

"Biome Lifestyle offers cosy wool throws made in Scotland from waste wool, and mohair blankets handwoven in a weaving cooperative in South India," says Emily. An antidote to some of the grungier ethical products out there, these are the real deal - finely woven, delicately styled and available in a range of soft, natural colours. They're also very well priced.

33 Organic cotton bedlinen

"Albatross has a really nice collection of towels (which come in a nice range of neutral colours), linens, duvets and pillows made from organic cotton," advises Collin. The 250-thread count bedlinen is especially attractive, with pillowcases and duvet covers that feature chic tie fastenings. Most natural bedlinen isn't available in a true white but this is, thanks to the company's eco-friendly bleaching process.

31 Home Made Vintage

This book is by Christina Strutt, whose fabric company, Cabbages & Roses, produces vintage-style fabrics and accessories. It features "over 40 quick and easy sewing projects" and, according to Sheherazade, is a "fantastic book full of things you actually want to make, all using old bits of fabric. A great way to recycle shrunken jumpers and make presents."

34 Lazy Chair

"Arbor Vetum's style is really lovely, and they go beyond the usual FSC label that guarantees a respectful exploitation of forests - Arbor Vetum is actually known as the first company in the world to have been awarded the FSC recycled label certificate for wooden products," says Collin. If you buy just one piece, make it a "lazy chair". Ergonomically designed, this curved lounge is stylish and made from reclaimed teak timbers.
